CONSTITUTION

OF THE

Newton Temperance Society and Lyceum.

Adopted January 1, 1827. Revised January 1, 1829.

PREAMBLE.

Believing that Intemperance is productive of more human misery and moral degradation than any other, or all other vices combined ; and that this most appalling of earthly calamities, is but the legitimate fruit of what ourselves, in common with a vast majority of the most valuable citizens of this highly privileged land, have practiced and termed the "reasonable and necessary use of ardent spirits ;"

Believing that "man cannot live to himself alone," and that every individual, however insignificant or uninfluential, may exert some influence upon others by his example, and is accountable to God and the community for all the evil consequences of that example ; and, believing that associated, is uniformly more successful than individual effort, we hereby form ourselves into an association for the promotion of temperance.

The main object of this Society, is not the reformation of drunkards. The habitual drunkard's example does comparatively nothing to tempt, but much to deter the rising generation from its imitation. We are, however, fully aware that the drunkard inflicts upon his affectionate wife and innocent children a weight of wo, not to be told or conceived, and sufficient to justify the unceasing labor of a whole community to remove.— But, at the same time, we feel that a whole community may labour with untiring zeal and perseverance, and accomplish literally nothing in this work. And were we able to remove from our mortified sight the drunkard's example, and relieve all the discouraged wives and humbled children, from that horrid weight of wo which is sinking them into the earth ; even then we should do nothing that death would not, in a very short time, accomplish without us. Indeed, the "terrible ravages of this sin are but streams issuing from the fountain of habitual moderate drinking ;" so that the reformation of every drunkard in the town, would not arrest, for a single moment, the progress of this many headed monster. The example of the daily "reasonable" draughts of too many of our most influential men, so long as such men continue to exhibit such an example, will continue producing successive crops of drunkards, to blast our moral welfare, and multiply widows, orphans and paupers amongst us.

"To warn the temperate ; to sound an alarm to the thinking ; to stand between the living and the dead, is the purpose of this association."— And for the accomplishment of this object, we mutually bind ourselves to a rigid observance of the following

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

I. The stile or name of this Association, shall be the "Newton Temperance Society and Lyceum," and its first and most prominent Article shall be, that its members totally relinquish the use of ardent spirit except as medicine.

II. Members of this Association hereby agree to refrain from inviting others to the use of ardent spirit, at their social visits or entertainments, and from furnishing it (except as medicine) to those whom they may employ.

III. Members who are parents or guardians of children and youth pledge themselves to use every effort to keep them from such places and company as may have a tendency to tempt to the use of ardent spirit, and to impress on the minds of the young a realizing sense of the dangerous consequences connected with its use.

IV. Any person approved by the Board of Directors may become a member.

V. The officers of this Society shall be a President, Vice President, five Directors, Treasurer and Secretary—Also twelve Trustees and two Librarians, to be chosen annually on the first Wednesday in January.

They shall meet as often as once in three months; and the Society annually, on the first Wednesday in January, and as much oftener as the Board of Directors shall from time to time determine.

XI. A Savings Institution shall be connected with this Society, the object of which, is to afford members or their families who are desirous of saving their money, a safe, and profitable mode of investment, and to encourage them to the practice of prudence, industry and economy.

XII. It shall be the duty of the Trustees and Treasurer to attend to the receiving and investing such sums of money as the members and their families may from time to time deposit in the Savings Institution—Which shall be done agreeable to the following Rules and Regulations:

First—The Institution shall be managed by twelve Trustees, to be chosen by the Association, who shall be obligated by a joint Bond to the depositors, for the repayment of the sums deposited, and such interest as these rules authorize the Treasurer to pay.

Seventh—All depositors must testify their agreement to these conditions by their signature, and subscribing to them at the time of depositing.

Eighth—All deposits received by the Treasurer shall be entered in a Book for that purpose, in separate accounts, and a duplicate shall be given to each depositor, which shall be the evidence of the sum or sums by him or her deposited.

Tenth—The Trustees shall receive no compensation for their services, and the Treasurer no more than reasonable pay, for the time he may expend in this business, to be determined by the Trustees.

Eleventh—The Trustees shall execute and deposit in the hands of the Treasurer a bond jointly and severally binding themselves to pay to the depositors, all sums deposited, with interest semi-annually at the rate of four per cent. per annum—And also for an equal division of all the surplus interest which may be realized by the Treasurer in five years from the first day of January, 1829.

Twelfth—The Trustees shall hold their office for five years from the first of January, 1829. And all vacancies that may occur during that time shall be filled by them.
